

Creating A Culture Of Training

From recruit schools to the bay floor, training standards must be a top priority in the fire service. Training is a disciplined and deliberate decision that must be implemented in any organization. Practicing fireground skill sets is how the fire service can safely, efficiently, and effectively uphold the oath to serve our communities. This two-hour virtual class includes an in-depth discussion regarding training topics that include company-level training, acquired structures, recruit schools, and many other areas.

Attendance is open to all active South Carolina fire, police, EMS, and dispatch personnel.
